Handbook for Information Literacy Teaching

Welcome to the Handbook for Information Literacy Teaching (HILT). This Handbook was written by a group of subject librarians at Cardiff University to support their colleagues in Information Services as they developed their information literacy teaching.

Since the appearance of the first edition in 2005, we have received many expressions of interest from outside the University. We are happy for you to use and re-purpose our material; please note that under the terms of our Creative Commons licence, your use of the Handbook is restricted to non-commercial purposes and you are required to acknowledge the source.

Please would you let us know how you decide to use the resource. We look forward to receiving your comments.

Broker informacji

Uczestniczący w procesie informowania bibliotekarz wchodzi obecnie w rolę brokera informacji wskazując użytkownikowi nie tylko książki na interesujący go temat, ale także wydawnictwa elektroniczne, czy też odpowiednią bazę danych. Jeśli przyjmiemy, że przez innowację rozumiemy wprowadzenie czegoś nowego a także, iż „jest ona procesem polegającym na przekształceniu istniejących możliwości w nowe idee i wprowadzeniu ich do praktycznego zastosowania,” to jest też bibliotekarz twórcą informacji innowacyjnej.

Broker informacji (po angielsku information broker) to osoba, która wyszukuje i udostępnia informacje... Ten zawód narodził się niedawno w wyniku specjalizacji bibliotekoznawstwa i rozwoju technik transmisji informacji.

Dziękuję za uwagę :)
